We all have love stories and all are unique. Here is a love story, which has itself wrapped firmly around Victory of Light.

My name is Jeff, and at the November 2007 Victory of Light Expo I began to feel weak, and asked our friend, reader Katherina Brooks (Kat's Counsel) if I could sit for a few minutes. While I sat she began receiving messages, one of them from my grandfather, Shorty.

This message was for our son Jeremy. Shorty told him to let go of the woman he was pining for; it was time to move on. After the festival I delivered the message to Jeremy, but there was no immediate effect.

At the April 2008 VOL, Jeremy received a blessing from another friend, James the 21st Century Apostle. James' blessings are always a high point for our whole family. During this blessing, James saw a bell ringing. He interpreted that as meaning "It's time." At that same instant 25 year-old Jeremy saw the face of a co-worker, Veronica, flash in his mind.

Shortly thereafter, he took time to chat with her while at work, and then asked her out. The two instantly became "an item." They share many beliefs, philosophies and even a strange high-school fascination with llamas. Throughout the summer of '08 they grew closer to each other, and we welcomed the 20 year-old woman into our family.

Then came the November '08 VOL Festival. Jeremy took Veronica and introduced her to James. As per his custom, James gave the couple a blessing. At the end of it he told them, "I feel a lot of baby energy around you right now. If you don't want a baby, I would suggest that you take strong measures to prevent it, because one is trying to come."

What neither James nor Jeremy knew was that Veronica was already expecting. She was in denial, but was beginning to be convinced. On January 23, 2009 she announced this news to Jeremy. After the shock wore off he proposed marriage and Veronica accepted.

The couple have tentatively chosen the name Orion for the little boy, who should be arriving in late March. Now we all know that minds could change before he is actually born, so don't hold them to that name.

This leads us to the Victory of Light Expo in April of '09. This event will mark one year from James' vision of a ringing bell, saying, "It's time." To mark the anniversary of this special, holy and psychic occasion, as well as to celebrate the new baby and upcoming marriage, Jeremy and Veronica have chosen to celebrate the ancient ceremony of hand-fasting – at the Festival – with James offering a blessing to the new family.

Jeremy, Veronica, Orion, and Jeremy's parents and sister, as well as Victor and our many friends at the Victory of Light Expo invite all to witness this special event on Saturday, April 18 at 3:30 p.m., next to the music of Lighthawk (at the top of the stairs.)

Light and Love to all,
Rev. Jeffrey Bentley
